As a writer, I've worked mostly from home for the past three years, especially during the COVID-19 pandemic. Although working from home is a good choice and I have spent less time and money on commuting, there are still some challenges.

1. Focus on your work. Your family, your pets, and TV programs might be great distractions that make you achieve nothing in the end of the day. It's better to have a room as a workplace where you can close the door to keep those distractions away.
2. Plan your day. It's important for you to plan your time to work as well as to take a break. If you don't, it's possible that you keep working all the time and forget your personal life. It's not healthy. Besides, taking a short break helps rest your mind and body, and it will make you work better.
3. Go for a walk. Getting fresh air and seeing different views can help you healthy and work better.

Follow these tips, and I believe you'll love working from home and do not want to go back to the office.

What is the most expensive city in the world? According to a study on the cost of living in the world, Singapore, followed by Paris, Oslo, Zurich, and Sydney, gets to keep the name it earned the year before. It's no surprise with the city's high prices for clothes, and cars. The next five on the top ten list are Melbourne, Geneva, Copenhagen, Hong Kong and Seoul. Basically, the top five cities are the same as last year.

In 11th place is London. The UK city is now as expensive as the world's most expensive city two years ago, Tokyo. If you are wondering about New York City, even though it is in 22nd place, it is still the most expensive city in the US. Interestingly, both Sydney and Melbourne were cheaper than New York City ten years ago. However, thanks to Australia's stronger dollar and higher and higher cost of living, the two cities have moved up.
